Ways to study

VIRTUAL CLASSROOM

Virtual classroom is the name given to a form of blended learning that involves delivery using virtual meeting software, combined with other resources. Our virtual classroom courses are delivered using Microsoft Teams, which we've been using extensively since January 2019. The structure of the course is based around an interactive session taking place each week, which kicks off with a tutor-led session of approximately 90 minutes to introduce new subjects and set the agenda for the day. Students complete online exercises via our online academy and work together in small breakout groups, giving plenty of time to share knowledge and work through content at their own pace.

Our expert tutors are always on-hand to provide support, on tutorial days and throughout the week, setting and giving feedback on project work, and providing guidance on exam technique. Every student receives a 566-page full colour study guide through the post, to give them a comprehensive reference to accompany their studies.

In short, we provide you with everything you need, both to pass the exams and gain your NEBOSH National General Certificate, and to gain an appreciation of (and hopefully a passion for) health and safety practice and the benefits it delivers.

Tutor-led virtual sessions take place on a set day each week over eight weeks.

An optional half-day revision session for the NG1 exam takes place a week after the course, giving you a final chance to get ready for the exam itself.

“ I loved the virtual classroom! I work from home most of the time now and so the virtual classroom fits well with how I work. I am dyslexic so the ability to have all my notes, course books, revision etc. all around was very comforting.”

Claire Wilson, CMS Law

FACE TO FACE

With face-to-face classroom training, one of our highly qualified trainers will come to your workplace or a location of your choice and deliver your training in a traditional classroom approach. Learners are fully supported by our qualified trainers, who will guide them through the course.

The trainer-led sessions include a range of interactive activities to test learners' understanding of the course's key learning outcomes and to demonstrate industry-specific examples. Face-to-face training can be a great team-building opportunity for employees and to mix teams together. Course content can be tailored specifically to your company's requirements. Learners study alongside their colleagues in a familiar environment.

“ The course tutors not only covered the core syllabus, but were open to answer questions related to my workplace – nothing was too much trouble. I would happily recommend International Workplace to anyone looking to study this course.”

Justin Adams, Norland Managed Services

“Thank you, International Workplace, for the excellent delivery of my NEBOSH virtual classroom course. The delivery was professional and supported me with my training needs. I have to say I have attended a lot of training sessions and never come across such an honest, open and dedicated person as Jamie. I really enjoyed the quizzes before we started our sessions.
